Museum of Natural History

Prepared in partnership with Autism Nova Scotia

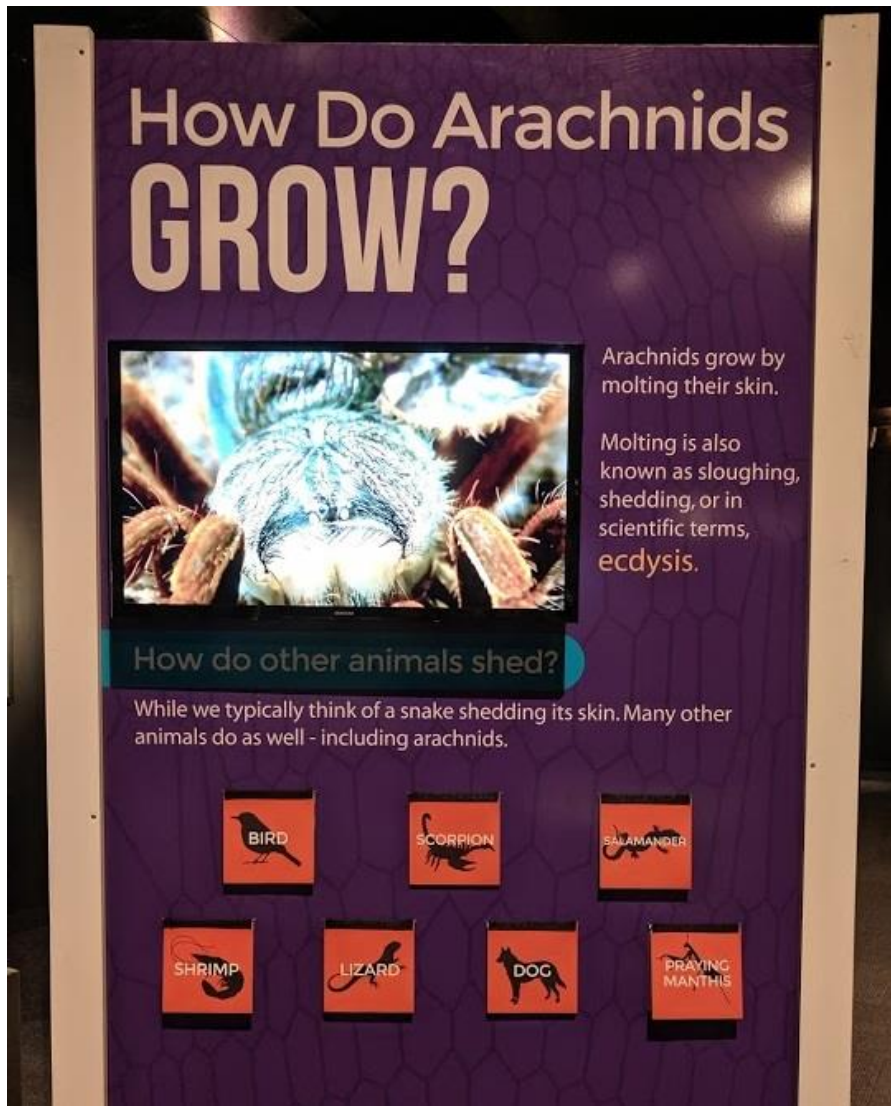

Today I am going to visit the spiders exhibit at the Museum of Natural History. When I go up the ramp into the galleries, I will see a sign directing me to the Spiders exhibit. I will follow the direction the arrow is pointing.

The exhibit is a safe place for me to see live spiders. The spiders are all living in tanks called terrariums. I will follow the museum's rules and not tap or bang on the spider's tanks.

There will be lots of exhibits that are special, and I can touch. Some have flaps that I can lift to see information.

I will have fun looking at the spiders and using the interactive exhibits!

There are step stools I can use if I need to see the spiders that are higher up.

There are two big spiders that may look scary, but they are only models and won't hurt me. I can touch them and create my own spider web.

There is a quiet corner where I can rest and read some spider books.

I can learn how to do a spider dance.

When I have finished with the spider exhibit, there is still lots more to see in the museum.
